

Official Statistics for Work and Life

PUBLIC SECTOR

World Bank Findex financial inclusion data are used by the United Nations to track progress on SDG 8.10.2, an official U.N. statistic measuring the most important issues in international development.

Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN) tracks the world’s happiness and these data are reported in the annual World Happiness Report. SDSN is a global initiative for the United Nations that engages scientists, engineers, business and civil society leaders, and development practitioners for evidence-based problem solving.

Harvard and the Global Alliance for Improved Nutrition (GAIN) partnered with Gallup to launch the Global Diet Quality Project. This initiative sought to measure what the world eats – not just how much. Current diets are the main drivers of ill health and premature mortality, so monitoring diet quality is essential for holding decision makers accountable for progress towards global nutrition.

Through the partnership between Hologic and Gallup, women’s health is being studied on a global scale. We have created a Global Women’s Health Index with the goal to provide data for a roadmap to improve the health of women and girls around the world. Year-two results of the Hologic Global Women’s Health Index show that prioritizing women’s health is more critical now than ever.

The International Labour Organization’s report on global attitudes and perceptions of women and men regarding women and work. The report published in 2017 was based on 2016 data collection.

The Food and Agriculture Organization’s Voices of the Hungry project sought to measure indicator 2.1.2. in 2014 FAO began leveraging Gallup World Poll data to build this metric.

Walk Free Foundation seeks to form a global consensus on modern slavery to be used as a baseline to inform policymaking and reach the United Nations’ Sustainable Development Goals. It measures indicator 8.7 – big takeaways are 40.3mil people in modern slavery in 2016.

The Global Flourishing Study is the product of collaboration among researchers from Harvard University, Baylor University and Gallup to address significant limitations in current studies of human flourishing. The project is based on the creation of an important new data resource: probability-based longitudinal study of more than 240,000 participants from 22 geographically and culturally diverse countries. The study includes a rich set of measures on well-being and health, religion, and spirituality, and social, demographic, economic, political, and psychological variables.

The Prindex organization measures property rights and works on exposing the global land and housing crisis. They conducted surveys in over 140 countries and found that 1 billion people around the world live in fear of losing their home.

The Wellbeing for Planet Earth Foundation seeks to establish a more inclusive understanding of wellbeing by incorporating cross-cultural perspectives into the science of wellbeing. Some of these less traditional concepts include calmness, harmony, and culture.

Cookpad is a food tech company and Japan's largest recipe sharing service. They looked at home cooking frequency around the world. The findings explored if and how home cooking correlates with other life factors.

Lloyd's Register Foundation is a global charity with the goal of engineering a safer world. The foundation and Gallup collaborated to launch the World Risk Poll to measure risk and safety across the world.

Lloyd's Register Foundation is a global charity with the goal of engineering a safer world. The foundation, in partnership with Gallup and the ILO launched a global study into violence and harassment in the workplace.

The Wellcome Trust is a global charitable foundation that supports research to solve urgent healthcare challenges facing everyone. Their COVID-19 report shows how the pandemic increased trust in science.

The International Labour Organization joined forces with Gallup to carry out a groundbreaking global survey covering 50 countries that sheds further light on the causes of the persistence of HIV-related stigma and discrimination in the world of work.

The European Commission created a social progress index (EU-SPI) that looked beyond GDP. This discussion promotes alternative indicators to better reflect societal development.

In partnership with Gallup, UNICEF launched a landmark intergenerational poll showing young peoples' attitudes towards the current world.

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development is an intergovernmental organization with 38 member countries with the aim of stimulating economic progress and world trade. The OECD's Better Life Index utilizes Gallup World Poll data to compare wellbeing across countries, based on 11 topics OECD has identified as essential.

The Charity Aid Foundation is a leading charity and bank seeking to connect organizations, institutions and individuals working to ensure everyone has a stake in the future. CAF has been producing the World Giving Index to analyze charitable behavior around the globe.

The Briq Institute on Behavior and Inequality did a custom data collection through the Gallup World Poll and published the results from the Global Preferences Survey in the Quarterly Journal of Economics. The survey aims to create a globally representative dataset on risk and time preferences, positive and negative reciprocity, altruism, and trust.

European Commission

The European Commission and Gallup collaborated to create a new standard variable to quantify the degree of urbanization.

The Global Social Progress Imperative is a global non-profit that provides decision makers and everyday citizens with the very best data on the social and environmental health of their societies. The Social Progress Index pulls from Gallup World Poll Data and measures 53 social and environmental indicators to create a clearer picture of what life is really like for everyday people.

The United Nations Development Programme's Human Development Index \(HDI\) is a summary measure of average achievement in key dimensions of human development: a long and healthy life, being knowledgeable and have a decent standard of living.

The International Organization for Migration created a study on how the world views migrants. IOM partnered with Gallup to interview over 180,000 adults across 140 countries between 2012 and 2014. Similarly, Gallup created the Migrant Acceptance Index to gauge people's acceptance of migrants based on increasing degrees of personal proximity.

Global System for Mobile Communications wrote a report in conjunction with Gallup assessing the impact of the mobile industry on social and economic development for people around the world.

AidData is a research lab at the College of William and Mary that seeks to make development finance more transparent, accountable, and effective. They utilized Gallup World Poll data to determine if aid can buy foreign public support.

The Institute for Economics and Peace created the Global Peace Index, which seeks to measure and communicate the economic value of peace around the world. The GPI is the world's leading measure in peacefulness.

West Health currently partners with Gallup to publish the Healthcare in America report, in which they sample over 6,000 Americans to track changing attitudes and behaviors in healthcare. Most recently the data demonstrated that “four in 10 Americans cut spending to cover healthcare costs.”

The Knight Foundation and Gallup explore the shifting landscape and how policymakers and technology companies might adapt to face evolving challenges concerning a host of issues, including how to control the spread of misleading and harmful content as well as false political ads online.

Knight Foundation launched the Trust, Media, and Democracy initiative in 2017 to inform solutions to declining trust in journalism and other democratic institutions. Knight has partnered with Gallup to produce a research series that seeks to better understand this trend by exploring Americans’ evolving relationship with the news media and the ways in which Americans seek information and engage in the democratic process.

The Bentley University Force for Good Report launched in October 2022 and sought to track how people feel about the impact business have. A little over half of Americans believe business has a positive impact on society. When asked about the impact of small business, most Americans believe it’s positive.

The State of Social Connections Study is a research project aimed at understanding the breadth, quality, and feelings of humans’ social interactions across the world. The study does a deep dive into network size, feelings of contentedness and loneliness along with charitable dispositions and perceptions of support, diversity, and types of interactions.

Gallup and the Lumina Foundation partnered together to launch the State of Higher Education 2022 Report. The Lumina-Gallup Student Study builds on insights from the 2020 survey by asking students about ongoing risks to their enrollment and the policies and programs that allowed them to remain.

Western Governors University and Gallup published Great Jobs, Great Lives - Gallup Study of Recent Western Governors University Alumni. This comprehensive study of alumni outcomes measured the extent to which WGU graduates are achieving good jobs and great lives after completing their degrees.

Upskilling is defined as training or education that teaches new skills or advances existing skills. Gallup, commissioned by Amazon, conducted the most comprehensive study to date on upskilling in American Upskilling Study. The survey found that upskilling is becoming a sought-after employee benefit and powerful attraction tool for employers amid the current labor shortage.

Google and Gallup's multiyear, comprehensive research effort to better understand perceptions of computer science and access to computer science can be found in Current Perspectives and Continuing Challenges in Computer Science Education in U.S. K-12 Schools-2020.

The Center on Black Voices is Gallup's research initiative devoted to studying and highlighting the experiences of more than 40 million Black Americans: tracking and reporting on progress on life outcomes and a life well-lived.

Awaiting data collection:

Momofuku Ando established the Ando Foundation, which is a subset of Nissin Group. The foundation promotes nature activities and research that develops new food products. The foundation is dedicated to the idea that "eating and sports are the two axles of health". They seek to look at food choice and enjoyment.

Ajinomoto is dedicated to contributing to greater wellness for people worldwide, unlocking the power of amino acids to resolve the food and health issues associated with dietary habits and aging.